Applicant Response.

30 The examiner has provided us with evidence from Hunt et al (US 5724524) as the pertinent art and in view of Chou et al (US 6035289) and Tozzoli et al (US 6151588) to show obviousness for all rejected claims.

Brief Description of the prior arts.

35 In Hunt, this invention deals mainly in listing and brokering a commodity and its financial derivatives. In Hunt, a derivative is defined as a financial instrument whose value is based on the perceived future collective value of a broadbasket of primary instruments. For example, a derivative could be based on the value of all carrier space travelling by air for a ninety period ended on a particular date some time in the future (ie 40 90, 120, 180 days forward) ( Col 5 lines 29-36). As noted, Hunt has explicitly given special meaning to his derivative. The characteristics of the derivatives comprise: a common descriptive link between varied commodity types; a contract that runs from the purchase date for the commodity; and a contract price.
